Coming soon to the Museum (as many would already be aware) is Clive's special display dedicated to HMAS Tobruk and the Rats of Tobruk. The display is all coming together wonderfully and will be officially opened with dignitaries in attendance at a ribbon cutting ceremony (10.30AM), followed by lunch (12.00 noon), on Saturday 29 June, 2019 ahead of the display opening to the public at 1.00PM on the same day.

Members who will be attending this special morning event need to notify Steve for catering purposes by Friday 14 June, 2019. Please also note the dress code for the event is neat casual, and any Veterans attending, please wear your medals! We look forward to seeing as many of you there as possible supporting this great display and the Museum.

If you missed it, the "International Women's Day, Celebrating the Women of Nambour" display was a great success and ran right through February and March. This one even attracted the attention of some of the papers and special thanks to Barbara Want for putting this display together!

What's happening at the Museum now? For the months of April, May and June 2019 we are showcasing some of the amazing COLLECTIONS that we have within the museum holdings, complemented by a few private collections that have been lent to the museum for this unique display event. The Collections display is intended to highlight the Museum's role in "connecting people, places and the past" in line with the broader Australian Heritage Festival running Nation Wide between 18 April and 19 May 2019. There will be an Open Day event for this display on Saturday May 4, 2019 with the Museum open from 10.00am to 3.00 pm on this day.

Come in and have a look, you won't be disappointed!
